Some Little Delay Here and There Due to Inexperience of New Chauffeurs.

STRIKING DRIVERS AWED

"Persuading Committee" Activities Along Postal Transfer Route Check Violence-Sympathetic Strike Threat.

The movement of United States mail about the lower city resumed its normal schedule yesterday, with the exception of a delay here and there, due to the inexperience of the new chauffeurs. On each mail truck there still sat a policeman beside the driver, but though the trucks continued to follow the route on Eighth avenue from the Pennsylvania Station past the headquarters of the striking chauffeurs, at Eighth avenue and 28th street, no violence marred the day's prog-

The turning over of the four prisoners arrested for disorderly conduct the day before to the federal authorities seemed to have awed the strikers. The ubiquity of the members of the Bob Emmett Association, an athletic organization of the West Side, is acting as another deterrent. A touring car full of members of this association was sent from the garage of the Postal Transfer Service Company, at No. 543 West 25th street, yesterday along the routes used by the mail trucks to act "persuading committee." Some bruised noses and swollen lips among the strikers gathered at Harley Hall, their headquarters, testified to the activities of these "athletes" Tuesday night and early yesterday morning.

One party of strikers in particular found an unexpected obstacle in its path when engaged on a scouting expedition in the neighborhood of the company's garage Tuesday night. Frank Ritteriser, of No. 240 East 86th street; John Hoyt, Joseph Gluck and Herman Schmidt made up this party on picket duty bent. On finding their progress along West 25th street obstructed by the police reserves they proceeded along West 26th street instead to within a short distance of the rear of the garage in the hope, they said, of meeting some of the new chauffeurs there and reasoning with them.

They met instead, they said, a dozen members of the "Humpty" Jackson gang Ritteriser bears his memento on his nose and Hoyt on his mouth. They insisted that their intentions had been entirely George Canning, of No. 232 East 78th street, and Patrick Brannigan, of No. 219 East 95th street, who were arrested at Eighth avenue and 28th street on Tuesday afternoon, charged with violently interfering with the progress of a mail truck down the avenue, were arraigned yester-day in Jefferson Market court before Magistrate Breen, who turned them over to the federal representatives. Later Com-missioner Shields held them in $750 bail each for examination on Wednesday.

Canning, it was alleged, threw a stone at the driver and patrolman sitting on the front seat, and Brannigan was charged with breaking a lock on the rear of the truck in trying to liberate Canning, whom Patrolman McFall had forced into the cage with the bags of matt, Patrick Johnson, of No. 1620 Avenue A. vice-president of the striking local, and William Eusillis, of No. 385 East 184th street, arrested earlier on Tuesday for a similar offence, were also up before Comissioner Shields. Eusillis, it was charged, threw a bottle at Roy Calderon, driver of a mail truck, Johnson, it was alleged, being a party to the act.

Their counsel argued that as the truck contained no mail at the time the gov-ernment's charge of conspiring to obstruct the mails should be dropped and one of disorderly conduct submitted. Commissioner Shields reserved decision, holding the two men in $500 ball each.

J. J. Cassidy, vice-president of the Postal Transfer Service Company, announced that no more applications for jobs as chauffeurs would be received; that he had filled all the strikers' places. The strikers threaten a sympathetic s'rike by the chauffeurs of express and baggage carrying companies. This, they say, will be decided upon to-day.

Industrial Classes. The Italian School of the Children's Aid Society, Elizabeth and Hester streets, was opened yesterday. Industrial education is the chief purpose of the new school, but it will be utilized also as a headquarters for boys' clubs and as a social centre.

Borough President George McAneny, who dropped in during the course of the exercises, said that those ideas of city functions which were once termed "fads and fancies" were now accepted as part of the duty of a municipality. He expressed relief at being able to get away for a time from the strain of the cam-

"We gave special consideration," he said "to the problem of increasing the freight train load, and thus were able to pay the regular 6 per cent dividend. Without this saving we would have fallen short $3,000,600." Mr. Willard contended that economic methods alone would not add to the net earnings of carriers. Instead of the 5 per cent increase the roads ask, he said, it per cent was necessary. He said a principal cause of the high cost of operation was the increase in wages of railroad employes. Mr. Willard hoped the Interstate Com merce Commission would see the justice of the roads' demands, not only for the immediate advantage that would ensue, but because it would indicate a new policy toward the railroads. If any other course were adopted, he declared, the nation's "industrial capacity would very soon evertake, if it did not overwhelm, the capacity of the railroads, and further commercial development of necessity would cease.'

Cold, Gray Dawn Chills Waiters' Anti-Tip Fervor.

A cold, gray dawn of the morning after feeling so chilled the enthusiasm of the International Hotel Workers' Union, which had all but resolved to abolish tips, that the mass meeting of the union in co-operation with the Commerciai Travellers' League, scheduled for last evening in Bryant Hall, was called off.

Filled with the enthusiasm engendered and fanned by Edward Blochlinger, organizer of the union, the waiters, a week or so ago, planned the mass meeting as a protest against tip-

Also there was a petition with 2,000 signers praying the Legislature for an anti-tipping law with teeth in it. The document was locked up in the office of the union pending its dispatch to Albany.

Amid all the enthusiasm the chilling thought struck several members of the union that discontinuance of tipping meant the absence of the merry jingle of silver to which their ears had become accustomed. They talked it over with others and decided not to become martyrs in the anti-tipping cause. So loud were their protests that Mr. Blochlinger decided to call off the mass

And then came the hardest blow of all. It was discovered that an ardent advocate of the tipping system had stolen the anti-tipping petition.' That seemed to give a body blow to the agitation, and the waiters will go right on accepting silver, gold or currency.
